AA CL Alberta Association for Community Living

serving children and adults with developmental disabilities
for over 45 years

We are a family-based, non-profit organization representing thousands of children and adults with developmental disabilities and their families. Our dream, which began 50 years ago, is for meaningful family and community life for our sons and daughters. This dream lives on today and people with developmental disabilities and their families remain at the heart of AAACL.

We believe families are at the heart of community and children and adults with developmental disabilities should have the opportunity and support to grow up in a family, have a home in the community, be educated in inclusive classrooms, develop friendships, and participate in and contribute to the life of their community. An inclusive community is a welcoming community, and everyone shares in the responsibility to create inclusive opportunities.
